

Celebrate
I Love To Write Day
November 15

www.ilovetowriteday.org

The World's Biggest Party For Writers

November 15, 2006 will mark the fifth anniversary of I Love To Write Day, a grassroots effort to have people of all ages practice their writing skills. Created by Delaware author John Riddle, I Love To Write Day is an opportunity for people of all ages to write something: a poem, an essay, a letter to the editor, a short story, start a novel, finish a novel the possibilities are endless!

On the first I Love To Write Day, 11,328 schools all across the country held special writing events and activities. Last year, we signed up over 20,000 schools. This year our goal is to have an I Love To Write Day program in over 25,000 schools. Please help us spread the word: tell schools, libraries and bookstores in your community about I Love To Write Day.

You can read more about I Love To Write Day and learn how to register (it's free!) by visiting

www.ilovetowriteday.org

Governors of Eight States Recognize I Love To Write Day

Many Governors from across the United States are recognizing the importance of writing, and are encouraging their residents to celebrate I Love To Write Day on November 15.

In fact, Governors from the following states have "officially proclaimed" November 15 I Love To Write Day: Delaware, Maryland, Kentucky, Louisiana, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Florida and Michigan. Read the official statement from Governor Ruth Ann Minner of Delaware by visiting www.ilovetowriteday.org

Please write to the Governor of your state, and ask him or her to recognize I Love To Write Day on Nov. 15.

Biography of John Riddle

As a freelance writer and author for the past 30 years, his byline has appeared in The Washington Post, The News Journal, The Middletown Transcript and dozens of other newspapers. He has written for over 150 magazines and trade journals, including Delaware Today, Charisma & Christian Life, Travel & Leisure, Home Life, Curriculum Administrator and others. He has also written for over 200 Websites, and is the author of 34 books, including Consulting Business, Streetwise Guide to Managing a Nonprofit Agency, The Story of the Pony Express, Getting a Book Contract in 30 Days or Less, and How I Made $66,270 in 9 Months Writing for Websites. He is a frequent presenter at writer's conferences all across the country, and last year spoke at the National Press Club in Washington, DC.

He lives in Bear, Delaware.
johnriddle@sprintmail.com